

AUSTRIAN ARCHDUKE AND WIFE ARE ASSASSINATED; MARTIAL LAW DECLARED

OUTBREAK IN BOSNIAN CAPITAL
FOLLOWS MURDER OF AUSTRIAN HEIR AND CONSORT IN STREETS ON SUNDAY.

MAY CAUSE UPHEAVAL

Tragic Death of Archduke Ferdinand Leaves Entire Burden of Dual Monarchy on Shoulder of Aged Emperor Francis Joseph.

Sarajevo, June 29.—(Associated Press.)—The assassination of Archduke Ferdinand and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, in the streets of Sarajevo, Bosnia, on Sunday, has caused a great commotion in the city and throughout the Balkans.

Another Bomb Thrown. A bomb thrown by a youth standing on the corner of the main street of the Bosnian capital, was a signal for a riotous outbreak which the troops found difficulty in quelling.

The only damage done by the bomb was a slight injury to a passing musician. The rioters, who were seized on the incident as an excuse to start a demonstration, the manifestants paraded the streets and sang Austrian national anthems.

Marshall law was proclaimed by the beating of drums and the posting of placards. Chief points of the city were immediately occupied by soldiers.

Places Buried on Emperor. Vienna, June 29.—The emperor had gained ground in authoritative circles here that the future of Austria-Hungary now more than ever depends upon the health of the venerable Emperor Francis Joseph. It was pointed out in high political circles that if the emperor is permitted to reign only a few years more, everything may continue as usual.

It was argued that would a youthful and inexperienced ruler like the Archduke Charles Francis, Joseph, son of the late Archduke Otto suddenly be called to take the reins of the government, a period of anxiety might supervene.

The young Archduke and his wife, who was the Princess Zita of Parma, both are extremely popular among classes of society and everybody from the emperor down said to be pointed out in high political circles that if the emperor is permitted to reign only a few years more, everything may continue as usual.

The suggestion put forth in some quarters that the death of the archduke will cause political upheavals is said to have little foundation, as the old emperor will keep the reins of the government in his own hand.

Momentous Political Effect. The tragedy at Sarajevo yesterday is bound to have a momentous political effect on the dual monarchy.

The arrival of Francis Ferdinand when he became heir was as comparatively unknown as Archduke Karl to day, but with this important exception, the emperor's son-in-law had prospect of many years still to reign. Now the empire, in a comparatively short time, must be governed by an inexperienced prince instead of a ruler with twenty years of experience.

The death of Francis Ferdinand will throw all burdens of government upon the aged emperor and at the moment it is next to impossible to predict what political result will follow yesterday's tragic event.

The late archduke had a tremendously strong personality and wielded an enormous influence in every department of political, military and naval affairs.

It was anxious to increase Austrian influence in the Balkans and worked energetically with that aim in view, of which is held as explaining Serbian antagonism toward him.

Little was known of Archduke Karl but it is supposed that the disappearance of such a strong personality, Austria may soon enter upon a period of greater disquietude than she would have expected under Archduke Francis Ferdinand.

Official Statement. The following official statement on the tragic death of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and Duchess Sophie of Hohenberg has been issued.

"As His Imperial Royal Highness Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his consort were proceeding this morning to a reception in the town hall at Sarajevo, he was shot by a young man named Gavrilo Princip, who was carrying a revolver.

His imperial royal highness was wounded on the head and the archducal motor car had passed.

Count Boos Walddeck and the aide-de-camp of the governor, Lieutenant Colonel Moriz, who were in the next car, were slightly wounded.

"Of the public six persons were injured, some slightly, some severely. The man who threw the bomb was arrested. He is a typographer named Gavrilo Princip from Trebinje.

Student Fires Shots. "After the reception in the town hall the archduke continued with his consort on a drive through the city. A student named Crivich, belonging to the highest class in the gymnasium and a native of Trachova, fired several shots at the motor car with a Browning pistol.

The archduke was hit in the face and the duchess wounded by a shot in the abdomen.

"The archduke and duchess were taken to the governor's palace where they succumbed.

Princip was arrested. Both he and the man who threw the bomb were almost lynched by the infuriated crowd.

Fired at Close Range. Some of the semi-official reports stated that when Princip, the young assassin, fired the fatal shot, Field Marshal Oskar Potiorek, governor of Bosnia, was seated in the archduke's car, and Count Francis von Harrach was standing on the footboard of the car serving as a shield to the occupants of whom he considered himself the special bodyguard, after the bomb had been thrown.

The archduke was joying with the count for his precautions, when several short shots were heard which were so true that each of them inflicted a mortal wound.

Field Marshal Potiorek thought the archduke had escaped the shots. Neither the archduke nor the duchess uttered a word, and it was seen that they had been hit.

Arrest Other Students. Some Serbian student here, when they heard the news of the assassination, shouted: "Thank God we need not do it ourselves." They were arrested as accomplices of the assassin.

Princip's plans were carefully thought out. He secreted himself behind a building at a spot where it was necessary for the archduke's car to slacken speed. Some accounts of the crime say that he actually stood on the step of the car and fired the shot.

New Heir to Throne. Archduke Karl Franz Josef of Austria, who becomes the heir apparent to the Austrian throne, was born August 17, 1887, and is twenty-seven years of age. He is the son of Archduke Otto and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg.

Archduke Otto, his father, died eight years ago.

Karl was married to Princess Zita October 10, 1911. They have one child, Charles Francis Joseph Otto, born November 20, 1912.

The marriage of Karl and Princess Zita was engineered by the nobility of Austria in frantic fear that when Archduke Franz Ferdinand, who was married yesterday, should succeed as emperor, a brother of the reigning emperor, Archduke Otto, his father, died eight years ago.

Heritage of Insanity. The son of Archduke Karl and Princess Zita is always in the shadow of a strain of lunacy which predominates in his parents' families. Karl's father, Otto, was half mad. ENDEAVORER'S HEAR FOUNDER'S ADDRESS

Rev. Francis E. Clark of Boston Speaks Last Evening at Madison Convention.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Madison, Wis., June 29.—Addresses by Rev. Francis E. Clark of Boston, founder of the Endeavor movement, and by Daniel A. Poling, his assistant and superintendent of the good citizenship department, marked the closing meetings of the state convention of the Wisconsin Christian Endeavor union last night. Many were turned away. The convention was the largest in the history of the state union, over 800 delegates attending.

The next convention will be held in connection with the international convention at Chicago in June, 1915. Rev. E. T. Farrill, Milwaukee, was unanimously endorsed for re-election as state field secretary. New officers chosen are: President, Rev. C. A. Mellecke, Grand Rapids; vice-president, William H. Fischer, Madison; secretary, Miss Alice Kastein, Waukegan; treasurer, A. A. Alexander, Milwaukee; junior intermediate superintendent, Miss Lily Matheson, Neenah; finance committee, A. A. Alexander, W. H. Steinberg, C. E. Houtkamp, Milwaukee; W. T. Williams, Randolph; David Bogue, Portage; W. A. Gaudette, Wauskegan; W. H. Fischer, Madison.

CARRANZA'S SILENCE AROUSES NEW FEARS

CONSIDERABLE APPREHENSION FELT OVER PRESENT MEDIATION PROSPECTS.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Washington, June 29.—Despite the continued expressions of hope that the plans for the Mexican mediation will not fail, considerable apprehension was shown today in official quarters. Considerable significance was attached to the fact that the mediation conference plans to take a recess unless there is some definite assurance from Carranza by tomorrow that his agents will meet Huerta's delegates on the subject of a provisional government outlined in the recent protocol.

Carranza's latest reply to the mediators asking for time to consult his generals who participated in the plan of Guadalupe, before agreeing to the proposed peace conference, was said here not to have reached the mediators, but would probably get to Niagara Falls by tomorrow.

Luis Cabrera, one of Carranza's agents here, said today he believed the general would yield to the wishes of the United States and the invitation of the mediators after he had consulted with his chief advisers.

Continued reports of the widening of the breach between Villa and Carranza, however, has served to disturb officials here. Alfredo Bredes, personal representative of Carranza, sent a telegram to the chief asking for definite word about the mediation conference as soon as possible.

YOST LAW EFFECTIVE IN WEST VIRGINIA

STATE WIDE PROHIBITION EFFECTIVE AT MIDNIGHT TUESDAY IN WEST VIRGINIA.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Charleston, W. Va., June 29.—State-wide prohibition of the liquor business in West Virginia becomes effective next Tuesday midnight. It brings the total number of states in the prohibition column up to nine.

With West Virginia added the list will be: Georgia, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Tennessee, West Virginia. These nine states of total prohibition territory, plus the local no-license areas, make up 2,132,728 square miles in which 46,029,750 persons or nearly 50 per cent of the country's population live according to the latest figures of the prohibition leaders.

The 92,000 majority with which the people of West Virginia accepted the dry proposition was relatively the largest ever given by any state. It was approximately 2 to 1 for state-wide suppression of the liquor business.

The prohibition forces, who were indebted largely to the determined stand which many of the large employers took in favor of their cause. The state has a population of 1,221,119 by the census of 1910.

To Enforce Law. The mandate of the legislature, embodied in the Yost bill, for the enforcement of the new law beginning Tuesday morning, has been put into effect. The chief features center about the creation of a commissioner of prohibition, whose particular business it will be to see that by next Tuesday morning 1,200 liquor selling places in the state have disposed of their stocks and that hereafter all persons shall be punished by law if they keep liquor for sale.

The governor, commissioner of prohibition automatically falls to State Tax Commissioner Fred O. Blue of this city, who has been spending several months in preparation for strict enforcement of the new law.

Drug Stores Hit. To save the state the time and expense of taking violations before state courts, he has been urging municipal ordinances governing violations, thus permitting the cases to be brought before the local courts.

In an effort to instruct the people as to the provisions of the new law, Commissioner Blue has been lecturing throughout the state.

"The chief feature of the new law," he said, "is that it has been adopted one of the forces that has had to be contended with has been the drug store. The Yost law will regulate this feature."

One person, not addicted to its use upon prescription of a reputable physician who has examined the person and in detail set forth in the prescription the reasons for the use of alcohol, may be supplied with a limited quantity of drugs for medicinal purposes.

The enforcement of the new law will be periodically by those in charge of the enforcement of the law. No drugist, however, can sell in any form whisky, brandy, ale or any beverage of an intoxicating nature.

No Clubs Allowed. "The Yost law also undertakes to do away with the drinking clubs which have been the sources of so much trouble in other states," he said. "It provides that any person directly or indirectly associated in keeping such a club house or other place where liquor is sold for consumption on the premises shall be punishable upon conviction by a fine of from $100 to $500 and by imprisonment from one to six months."

The enactment of the new law will be of considerable assistance in enforcing the prohibition law in this state," he continued.

"One of the benefits of the federal act is that records of violations are required, and therefore every railroad, express company, and any kind of transportation company, including steamboats and vessels carrying freight or express, either from another state into ours, or from our state to another, must obey the laws of this state respecting liquors. Every one of the transportation companies will be required to keep special records of the names of persons carrying liquor, and to deliver up the records at all times."

The man who is engaged in the steamboat business upon our waters, interstate or otherwise, must keep these records, and will not be permitted to deliver any liquors or make sale of any liquors upon board his vessel while in our waters.

"This brings us to the question of how far state to solicit verbally, or by circular or otherwise. There is only one of two ways that a citizen of this state may bring liquors into it; he may upon his own initiative order it and have it sent to himself by express carrier for his personal use, or he may go and get it. But in either event he cannot bring it here for unlawful purposes. If he orders it shipped by common carrier, he is guilty of no crime. If he goes after it and takes it with him, intending to use for unlawful purposes, he may be arrested and the liquor seized, as soon as he comes into the state."

CLAIM JOHNSON WILL SOON BE DEFEATED

Reign of Black Dynasty in Pugilism Continues by Black Jack's Decision Victory Over Moran.

The outcome of the decision victory of Jack Johnson over Frank Moran, white, at Paris, Saturday, in twenty rounds, is that pugilistic experts have declared that the negro champion has retrograded so far that he can no longer hold his title against white challengers.

Johnson won the decision over the Pittsburgh white boxer in twenty rounds of slow fighting. The fact that Johnson could not knock out Moran, a second-rate fighter, in twenty rounds, is taken as evidence that American heavyweights will be able to topple the negro before many more months. Moran carried the fight to the champion, and after fighting evenly for ten rounds was struck a heavy punch in the tenth that turned the tide of the fight. From then on Moran was the loser, but Johnson failed to knock him out despite Moran's closed eyes and dazed condition.

Jess Willard and Gunboat Smith, two strong heavy punching hopes, are the two picked out that could take away the crown from Johnson. Smith is rated as superior men to Moran. The negro's next bout unfortunately is with Sam Langford, a negro.

Jack McMahon, Janesville's white hope, declared that Frank Moran, who is from Pittsburgh, was a second-rate fighter three years ago around the Smokey City, where he was regarded as a fair preliminary rounder. McMahon expressed an opinion that if Moran could stay twenty rounds with Johnson, it is certain that heavyweights in this country could beat him.

The Janesville boxer stated that Moran was powerfully built, but until he knocked out Al Palzer was considered as "Joke" hope. At the time of his match with Billy Berger, a strong demand maintained through the morning featured the live-stock market today. Hog trade was active with prices five cents above Saturday's averages, and the trade was brisk with quotations somewhat lower. Following is the price list:

History of Title.
Paddy Ryan, 1880 won the heavy weight ring title from Joe Goss in an eighty-nine round battle fought in West Virginia. Great American interest in the prize ring practically dates from the advent of John L. Sullivan, who defeated James J. Corbett in February, 1892, at Mississippi City, Miss., and defeated him in nine rounds.

From then on Sullivan ruled supreme with the possible exception of the Mitchell fight, which ended in a draw. This title was fought March 10, 1888, in France, and was called a draw by mutual agreement. This was fought outdoors in the rain.

James J. Corbett, ring correspondent for the New York Herald, won the world title from John L. Sullivan September 7, 1892, knocking the old champion out. Sullivan held the title ten years seven months. Corbett held it four years seven months, and until he was knocked out by Bob Fitzsimmons March 17, 1897, at Carson City.

Fitz held the crown two years three months, when he was knocked out by Jim Jeffries, June 9, 1896, at Caesars Island. Jeffries held the honor nearly six years, when he, finding no worthy competition, retired, turning the title over to Marvin Hart, conqueror of Jack Root.

Hart took the title July 3, 1905, and lost it soon after to Tommy Burns February 23, 1906, at Los Angeles. Burns put up a strong list of battles till he ran against Jack Johnson, December 26, 1908, and lost the championship to the negro in Australia. Burns thus held the top seat for nearly three years. Johnson held the title despite efforts of many promoters to find a white hope capable of taking it away from him. His best known fight was with Jeffries July 4, 1910, at Reno, Nev., when he knocked Jeffries out. Johnson has held the title six years and six months.

AMUSEMENTS

THE APOLLO.

A double show containing two big features is announced for the Apollo for the first part of this week. For today, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Madame Ellis, the Woman of Mystery, will give a demonstration of mind reading. She promises to call the names of the willing and answer their questions entirely through mind reading. She is blindfolded and from the stage name the articles which her attendant in the audience touches.

On Tuesday Mary Pickford will again appear at the Apollo in another Famous Players photo play feature. This time she will be presented in "Hearts Adrift," a thrilling story of the sea, in which Mary is shipwrecked on a desert island.

CONRAD, SINGER OF POETRY OF LIFE

Miss Conrad, who with two artists associates, is making an extensive tour of the United States in the interest of the National Society for the Education of the Blind, will be heard in a cycle of Song Recitals poetically called "The Apple Orchard."

That the uplifting effect of common things and the great mass of poetry in the world, the kind that feeds souls, brightens minds and cheers hearts, find best form of expression in song, is clearly demonstrated by the singing of Conrad.

As treated by her, the stereotyped poem set to music, becomes new and beautiful, and a familiar song, a perfect revelation of meaning and force in accordance with the doctrine that mankind's fundamental need is the need of poetry this great artist, then whom there is no finer illustration of poetic feeling and artistic emotion in the world of music, is devoting her time and talents in the effort of helping her fellow beings to realize the poetry of life.

Whatever a man does, she thinks, if he can weave poetry out of it, he can live by it.

If he can not, he dies by it. For when poetry is gone, when it is a dull grind, when we work not as creative, disposing artists, but as exen or dumb slaves then we have reached the time when we grow old fast, for the soul is wearing itself out.

The best workman is one who feels the poetry of his calling. This is what his spirit lives on—poetry, not the wages that he draws.

The mother in her daily round of household duties, the schoolmaster in molding the characters of his pupils, the engineer in oiling the machinery of his locomotive, the church, the nations infusing all hearts with currents of patriotism, and need poetry.

And in proportion as we learn to sing of business and forget the claims that chafe and irritate, we come to realize the significance of the poetry of life.

PRIMARY ELECTION NOTICES RECEIVED

County Clerk Lee Gets Official Announcement of Election to Be Held Sept. 1.

County Clerk E. W. Lee received today from the secretary of state notice of the general primary election which will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 1, at which candidates will be placed in nomination for state and county offices. The notice will be given official publication early in July, and copies of the same will be sent to the various town, city and village clerks in Rock county. One month remains for the circulation of nomination papers, which must be on file thirty days before the primary, or by August 2, for the State of Donald's nomination petitions as a candidate to succeed himself have been placed in circulation through the state. Those who are desirous of being placed in nomination for the office of Governor or two ago as were those of Governor McGovern for the United States senatorship. A republican candidate for lieutenant governor on the progressive side has not come out. The office of governor is held by W. M. Gray of Oshkosh, his determination not to run leaves a vacancy in that position on the stalwart republican ticket, which will be filled by the convention committee. Thus a clear path is left for the second place on the ticket.

WOMAN TAKEN TO HOSPITAL BY CITY HEALTH OFFICER

On finding that a woman, whose name is given as Mrs. Grady of Chicago, had symptoms of diphtheria, Dr. S. B. Buckmaster took her and a faint child to the detention hospital Saturday, where she is being given medical attention. Mrs. Grady came to this city Friday with the body of a five-year-old child, which died in Chicago of diphtheria. The child was buried here.

It was learned that Mrs. Grady and an infant baby were ill and the Dr. Buckmaster at once took them to the city hospital and gave them medical attention, refusing to allow her to go back to her home in Chicago. It is not thought residents of this city were exposed to the disease.

SCHOLLER TO ATTEND STATE OPTOMETRISTS' CONVENTION THIS WEEK

Agricultural and Garden Dept. ALLEN B. WEST, Director.

In this department Professor West will answer all questions on agricultural and garden matters each Saturday. As your interest in the department develops, a more frequent insertion of the queries and answers will be made. Address all communications signed with your name, to the Agricultural Department, Gazette. Your name will be withheld, if desired. If personal answer is also desired, enclose self addressed stamped envelope.

Allen B. West.

Question: What shall I do for my plum trees? There are very small red bugs on the underside of the leaves and ants, too.

Answer: The small red bugs are doubtless aphids, or plant lice, and the ants are said to furnish the aphids a fluid of which they are fond, so they are sometimes called "ants' cows."

The remedy is that used for all sucking insects, namely, kerosene emulsion or tobacco soap. The recipe for kerosene emulsion has already been given in the Gazette Garden and Agricultural Department of June 11.

It is here given again with the suggestion that the soap be clipped and used for the plum trees but also for the black ones on the cherry trees, often quite a serious pest in July, and for the slugs on rose bushes for any sucking insect or scale insects.

TRAINING CREWS FOR AMERICAN DEFENDER

Final Races of American Yachts Will be Held Off Newport to Pick Defender in Lipton Race.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) New York, June 29.—With the various weaknesses which developed in the tacking-up races corrected, the trio of cup defense yachts are about to enter upon the second stage of the America's cup preliminary races. Beginning next week off Newport will be held the first official tests of the Resolute, Vanitie and Defiance and the cup committee will base its final selection of a defender upon the result of these and subsequent races.

These initial point races, as they are termed since the points scored will count for or against the defense aspirants, begin on July 7 with a series of round races, in which each yacht will race the two others in turn, and the committee expects to secure valuable data as a result of the dual contests. The early races both on Long Island and off Sandy Hook clearly indicated that of the trio the Resolute was the only yacht really ready for the June races. Once the remodeling of spars and sails is completed it is predicted that the future contests will be far closer and the victories more evenly divided.

While the structural points of the three sloops will be brought out to the best advantage in all these races, the work of the crews will be very important factor in the preliminary contests have been just as much of a training for the tars as the spring workouts of the baseball players. Once the crews are thoroughly organized and drilled the speed in handling sail will be a factor in the winning or losing of races. It is a peculiar fact that in connection with these cup yacht crews that almost without exception they are foreigners.

The captains of the three sloops have invoked the aid of Norway and Sweden in defending the America's cup, for Vanitie, Defiance and Resolute are all manned, forward of the mast, by descendants of the Norsemen. Years ago America's cup defenders were manned with Penobscot Bay tars, mostly from Deer Island, but few Yankee seamen have been seen on the cup yachts since the Vinal Haven crew on the Defender assisted in defeating the Valkyrie III.

Captain Christensen, Resolute, brought near a score of men from his native town of Bergin, Norway. Norway, far up near the land of the midnight sun, while Captain Howell of the Defiance and Captain Dennis of the Vanitie also recruited their crews with Scandinavians, although the hands give South Brooklyn as their halling port. They are a lively set of tars, these yellow haired and red cheeked sons of the Norwegian fjords, with muscles like iron and nerves of steel, for it takes a cool head to occupy the masthead position on a cup defender, especially in a smart breeze and some sea, with club topsails adrift and spinnaker halyards caught in the standing rigging.

Every man on the three boats is a veteran, and with a few exceptions have worked a year and some of them five years under their respective skippers. Captain Howell of the Defiance took a number of his men from the sloop Italciana although some of them sailed with Commodore E. Walter Clark on the schooner Irolita, now the tender to the Defiance.

NO GOLDEN HARVEST FOR CLUB OWNERS

Lean Year in Baseball Business Worries Club Owners—Business Dullness Is Blamed.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) New York, July 29.—Organized baseball and especially the major leagues will not look back on 1914 as a year of golden harvests. With mid-summer rapidly approaching reports from all parts of the country are to the effect that attendance figures are not up to the usual standard. The reasons assigned for this unusual state of gate receipts are entirely varied. The advent of the Federal league is not generally given as a contributing cause and it is known that the new organization is not any better supported than the older organizations. One authority who owing to his position has access to the books, said recently:

"I attribute the falling off of attendance to the general depression in business. Baseball is like any other attraction that depends upon the public for support. It feels business depression and its receipts are an accurate barometer of the general conditions. I was recently told during a trip around the circuit that one city supporting a major league club had more than 17,000 untenanted houses due to the fact that many of the working class had left in search of other employment. Conditions I found to be the same to some extent in other cities. Baseball has its lean years and under the circumstances it is not surprising that we should hear complaints."

The situation is one which readily lends itself to pessimistic and sensational reports but there is no thought on the part of those who have made baseball a life business of putting up their shutters. If it is found that a readjustment of certain circuits are necessary such changes will be made in due time. There is no tendency, however, to act on snap judgment.

Edward Barrow of the International league voiced the general sentiment of organized baseball when he said about the subject:

"I am not prepared to say what future developments may arise or whether conditions may not ultimately demand a revision of the circuit, but this I will say, and say most positively, no change is contemplated this season. And if any change is made in future it will be by the unanimous consent of the club presidents. Our constitution demands that courtesy. Baseball generally this season is not in a flourishing condition as it has been the past several seasons, but the International league has been hit no harder than any of the other leagues."

THE JANSVILLE STARS MEET DEFEAT AT HANDS OF COLLIE HILL EAGLES

In a loose game at the Collie Hill diamond in Beloit Sunday the Jansville Stars lost to the Collie Hill Eagles by a score of 4 to 2. The cause for the defeat of the Stars was their lack of hitting ability at the right time. However, the twirler for the Jansville team, completely out-pitched his opponent, fanning eight Eagles and walking none, while Clayton of Beloit only whiffed three Stars and walked one. The lineup were: Beloit—Lafay, lf.; Len, cf.; Dales, rf.; Lynch, 3b.; Reynolds, 2b.; Anderson, 2b.; Dodge, c.; B. Taylor, ss.; L. Taylor, p. Hans Wagner is in Dutch, which seems natural, with all fishermen, but especially those who fish along the Charles river. Wagner has enjoyed a rep as an angling artist for quite a while, but his recent "faux pas" puts him in an awkward position when fishing in discussed. Wagner was fishing along the Charles river and was pleased to show neighboring fishermen that very good fishing was to be had there if one only knew how to go about it. He displayed a string of eight or nine that picked up a proof. Whereupon those who saw howled derisively. Picked up in those parts aren't considered fish at all. The anglers along the Charles river call them snakes and upon finding one on their hook throw them back with disgust. The only fish they'll consider are mucky, pike and bass. Picked up are very rough stuff. Lay off the pickerel, Hancus.

In spite of the lacing Charlie White gave him, Willie Ritchie is going right ahead gathering in the shekels. His bout with Freddy Welsh in England will pay him handsomely. Aside from the $15,000 guaranty he will probably make something like $20,000 in moving pictures, advertising and so on. Charlie White will go a clip if he beats Willie at making it pay.

The warm and sultry weather is hard on the poor umpire. They can't find comfort by wearing their clothes. They must continue to wear the complete habilliment in the hot test season with a chest protector, shin guards, steel-knuckled shoes, mask and eye plate for the early let us be a little more tolerant of their mistakes in the warm months.

Nof that there is the slightest indication of it, but Walter Johnson when asked if he'd care to be an umpire, he should guess he would not. "No, never," said Walter. "It'll be back to the dear old farm for me when that time arrives."

There's a child-wonder out on the coast pitching for Los Angeles. He's nineteen years old and his performance to date would do credit to a brilliant vet. He has won seven straight games for Los Angeles this season and has finished some six or seven more. Only thirteen runs have been scored against him this season. The boy's name is Elmke.

BOOSTER RUN WILL BE HELD TUESDAY

Expected That Fully A Hundred Cars Will Make Trip To Beloit Tomorrow Evening.

"There will be fully a hundred autos in the big booster run to Beloit Tuesday evening," said Chairman Thomas Murphy of that committee this afternoon. "We mean to make it a record breaking affair and they plan to be from the Court House Park at seven o'clock. The Bower City Band has been engaged and we will be furnished with advertising matter to distribute when we arrive in Beloit. While the committee has been most diligent in searching for auto owners who will make the trip there may be some we have overlooked and we earnestly desire that they plan to join with us to help swell the number and take part in the enthusiasm of the evening."

P. H. Korst of the Janesville Electric company this morning made arrangements for the appearance of the only genuine "Tang," known to be in existence in this country as the exhibit of the Janesville Electric company, employees in the Nonesuch Bros. parade on Saturday next. The "Tang" is twenty-six feet long, ten feet high, has six legs and an enormous tail. If you spell his name backwards you will find that he is the Gnat species. He has red and green eyes and a voice that resembles a gong or fog horn combined and huge jaws that snap in a most ferocious manner. He will be in care of a special keeper sent here with him from Chicago.

Chairman Geo. E. Parise of the auto parade committee for the night of the fourth says, "arrangements have been completed whereby those desiring to purchase decorations for the automobile parade may secure them from Ed. Amerpohl, florist. Those desiring suggestions of designs, etc., may receive them from the chairman at 411 Hayes block."

The large auto parade committee will be glad to co-operate with owners of cars and assist in planning and decorating your car. Prizes will be awarded as follows: For this decorated car first prize, $50.00; second prize, $25.00; third prize, $15.00; fourth prize, $10.00. Many new and novel features may be found in a book of designs.

Regulation size, all felt, splendid quality Janesville pennants, regular 50c value, special for Auto Booster trip at 10c each. Hinterschied's. Two Stores, 221-23 W. Milw. St.

POUNDMAN CAPTURES LICENSELESS DOGS

Dog Catcher Runs Down Three Canines This Morning Who Did Not Have License Tags.

For Sale: One white spitz dog. Good household pet. Can do many cute tricks, including begging for food, standing on hind legs, jumping over sticks, etc. One female bull dog and one fox terrier. Inquire of Ben Hammond, city poundman. Office, cellar, city hall.

Within forty-eight hours Ben Hammond, city dog catcher, will be at liberty to sell these three dogs, for this morning Hammond rounded up a trio of tagless canines and imprisoned them in the boiler room of the city hall. Here they will stay unless the owners pay their fee of one dollar and twenty-five cents per day for feeding and also purchase a tag. In case they are not sold they will be shot and the poundman will receive his pay for the work. Hammond declared that he would have the room full before the week is over without more dog owners purchase license tags.

UNIVERSAL Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION CLOSES

Universal Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE OF ASSOCIATION WORKERS ENDS AT LAKE GENEVA, LAST NIGHT.

ADOPT MANY POLICIES

Many Foreign Nations Are Represented—Wisconsin Leads Other States With Delegates.

The 35th International Y. M. C. A. conference, including all employees of the world, came to a close last evening at Lake Geneva, after the big event of success was reached. Eight hundred general secretaries, physical directors, country secretaries and their helpers, in fact employees of all descriptions, closely tied with the universal association work, were present to push the future years' work more for the good of getting the boys and young men into the work, than ever before.

Out of a score of issues passed favorably upon by the various international committees, three stand out as being the most important. The first deals with the administrative department of the associations. It is now the purpose of the various general secretaries to see that the different departments which have been responsible for the work involved in that particular department. In this way a more systematic method for running a more orderly and effective Y. M. C. A. can be brought about.

The second, paramount resolution takes up the evangelistic side of the Y. M. C. A. work. The new idea is to have appointed laymen with good christian characters to aid in the work of the secretaries and their help in rounding up the youths and bringing them into the churches and associations. The physical phase of the association work constitutes the third most important resolution, which has been held responsible for the summer are especially urged.

Frank M. Yordy, physical director at the Janesville Y. M. C. A., and L. A. Markham, Rock county rural association secretary, were the two delegates from Janesville at the big conference. Secretary J. C. Kline could not be present.

TOURIST PARTY IN MIDST OF TROUBLE

Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy, Sr., Daughter, Julia, and Miss Margaret Goodwin of Beloit, Visit Italy Strike.

It was the rare opportunity for Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy, Sr., daughter Julia, of Beloit, and formerly of this city, to be visitors in Italy recently at the time of the railroad trouble, when a strike was declared by the employees of the various lines.

Peace was the center of much trouble, and the party declare in letters written to relatives and friends, both in Beloit and this city, that they had never seen so many soldiers at any one time before. It was necessary to rush thousands of armed men to the city to meet any emergency liable to arise. The party are enjoying and will remain until they are fully satisfied that they have witnessed a good share of the most important places of interest.

FORTY-TWO RECEIVE COMMUNION SUNDAY

Members of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church Crowd Edifice at Morning Service.

Forty-two children of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church received their first communion yesterday morning, beginning at 8:30 a. m. Rev. Father Goebel, pastor of the local parish, being assisted by Father Becaria, chaplain of the Mercy hospital of this city.

The flower girls and candle bearers added glory to the list of those already participating in the service, thus making the occasion exceptionally significant and impressive. The vesper choir sang during the mass, before the large congregation which filled the sacred edifice.

CHARGE GRANT WITH SELLING TO MINOR; PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Owner of Railroad Hotel Saloon Will Stand Trial on City's Charge Tuesday Morning.

Oliver Grant, proprietor of the Railroad Hotel saloon, was arraigned in the municipal court, before Judge Maxfield, for violating the city ordinance of selling intoxicating liquor to a minor this morning. Through his attorney, M. O. Mount, of the firm of Jeffris, Mount, Oestreich and Avery, Grant waived the reading of the complaint and entered a plea of not guilty.

City Attorney W. H. Dougherty petitioned for immediate trial and Judge Maxfield set the case for Tuesday morning at nine o'clock. Attorney Mount asked for a jury trial, which was drawn at four o'clock this afternoon. Grant's arrest was on the complaint of Chief of Police Champion that the saloon keeper sold Bert Premo a can of beer on the twenty-second of June. Premo, when on trial last week for giving intoxicating liquor to a twelve year old girl, told in court that he had obtained a can of beer from the Grant saloon. On this evidence the arrest was made.

Two more were brought into the municipal court this morning for riding bicycles on the sidewalk and Judge Maxfield declared that it was about due time that a heavier fine be given as a punishment to the offenders. Grant Noyes pleaded guilty to the city charge and paid a fine of one dollar and costs. Edward May, aged sixteen years, through his honesty in admitting violating the ordinance was let off with a fine of a dollar without costs. Harold Glass pleaded guilty and was given five dollars or ten days. Kehoe took the ten days.

Thomas Kehoe missed the Eagles' picnic Sunday. Instead of enjoying a pleasant day up the river joining in the picnic sports and big "eats," he was in the city hall, when arraigned on the charge of intoxication. Kehoe pleaded guilty and was given five dollars or ten days. Kehoe took the ten days.

FIVE GET DIVORCES IN CIRCUIT COURT

Separations Granted to Four Beloit Applicants and One From Janesville.

Five divorces were ordered by Judge Grimm in circuit court this afternoon, four of the applicants being from Beloit and the other from Janesville. Four of the separations were granted on the grounds of desertion and the other that of habitual drunkenness and cruelty. The other applicants who secured decrees were Florida W. Collins of Beloit, from George T. Hollins; Frank De Savelli, a native of Italy, now a resident of Beloit, from Josephine De Savelli; Mary Keesepie of Beloit, from John Kleeth, and the other of Beloit, from Christina Curry.

Judge Grimm also ordered judgment filed in the divorce case of the little John K. White versus Margaret Ann White, a decree which was signed by Judge William F. Lyons in the circuit court in 1887, but which had never been filed. Mr. White subsequently remarried and after his death his widow, Candace A. White, of Edgerton, was confronted with difficulties in securing a widow's pension on account of the faulty divorce judgment. Judge Grimm ordered the judgment filed and of effect as if it had been filed at the time the divorce was granted.

COUNCIL WILL ACT ON SALOON LICENSE TUESDAY AFTERNOON

City Commissioners to Pass on Application for Licenses at Meeting Tomorrow.

Mayor Fathens and the council will consider the saloon license applications Tuesday afternoon at the regular meeting of the council. Licenses for the coming year will be granted July first. It is expected several of the saloon owners who have made application "will be called on the carpet" to explain violations during the past year and several may be refused licenses entirely. It has been assured the some resolution will be enforced and no more than forty-two licenses will be granted. This, carried out, will throw out four of the present applicants that have applied for a permit for buildings outside of the zone. The council expects recommendations from the Retail Liquor Dealers' association which the commission will consider. The commissioners have expressed a desire to eliminate dealers who have failed to adhere strictly to the law. Mayor Fathens expressed his opinion in the following manner:

"As long as the saloon is a licensed business, by the vote of the public it becomes the duty to the city to regulate them according to law. The saloonkeepers know the law perfectly and when they realize that it is to their interest and business to obey the law then no trouble will result. But until then it remains for the council to enforce the law. The attitude taken is that the most effective way to stop violation of saloon men is to refuse them license."

The applications received, filed and published are as follows: E. E. Fathens, 500 W. Milwaukee street; Isaac F. Connors and Son, 214 West Milwaukee; John Regan, 18 South River; J. E. Gokey, 51 North Academy; Paul Bahr, 122 North First; Thomas E. Abbott, 21 South Main; Louis Alwin, 51 S. River; George C. Courtney, 51 S. River; Frank Flannery, 51 S. The Evening Chit-Chat

A FATHER'S FERTILE SCHEME.
On a certain street in a town where I used to live one place, though no larger or more imposing, stands out from all the rest. Strangers passing often stop to look at it. The townspeople are proud of it, and point it out to their visitors. And yet the house itself is no more attractive than several others on the street. It is simply the tasteful arrangement of handsome trees and shrubs which give the place its air of distinction.

And thereby hangs a tale.

There are six children in that house. Twenty-two years ago when the first child was born there was nothing distinctive about the place, but on that day the proud father, wishing to commemorate the event in some extra-special way, went out into the woods, brought home two beautiful fir trees and planted them at the entrance to the little driveway. Today they stand, two stately sentinels guarding the gate.

That was the beginning of a custom. On the day of each child's birth and on the anniversary of each birthday, the father has planted at least one tree, shrub or plant as his birthday present to the child. The children have other gifts of course, but none in which they take more interest and pleasure than their father's.

Of course each tree or plant is known by the name of its owner. The so-called "firs" are "Robert's firs." Mary, the next oldest, has a pair of apple trees, planted on the day of her birth, in which she can now climb. For the last four years they have borne splendid crops of apples which are looked on as Mary's particular property, although she shares them with the rest of the family.

The crimson Rambler was planted on the baby's second birthday. The group of silver birches belongs to the little twelve-year-old daughter who, in her slim, girlish grace, rather reminds one of that exquisite tree. A cluster of purple and white lilacs, a wonderful Japanese maple and a beautiful wisteria are among the ornamental plantings which give the place its distinction.

There is also a rose garden, a small but excellent fruit orchard and a fine grape arbor which have come into being each in this way. A fertile patch of asparagus (presented by special request) belongs to the most practical of the brood and helps to take care of his own plants, and a yearly reward to the one who fulfills this duty the best helps stimulate their interest.

The outdoor work is healthy for them, they have learned a good deal about gardening, the family has been drawn more closely together by this common interest, the appearance of the place has been greatly improved and its value correspondingly enhanced.

All this has been done on three-quarters of an acre of land, and with scarcely larger expenditure than any father in moderate circumstances makes on his children's gifts.

Don't you think that is a scheme good enough to be imitated?

There are a few general principles underlying the making of all sauces or gravies, whether the liquid used is water, milk, stock, tomato juice, or some combination of these. For ordinary gravy two level tablespoonfuls of flour or one and a half tablespoonfuls of cornstarch or arrowroot is sufficient to thicken a cupful of liquid. This is true excepting when the flour is browned. In this case about one-half tablespoonful more should be allowed for browned flour does not thicken so well as unbrowned. The fat used may be butter or the drippings from the meat, the allowances being two tablespoonfuls to a cup of liquid.

The easiest way to mix the ingredients is to heat the fat, add the flour and cook until the mixture ceases to bubble, and then to add the liquid. This is a quick method and by using it there is little danger of getting a lumpy gravy. Many persons, however, think it is not a wholesome method and prefer the old fashioned one of thickening the gravy by means of flour mixed with a little cold water. The latter method is of course not practicable for brown gravies.

The good flavor of browned flour is often overlooked. If flour is cooked in fat until it is a dark brown color a distinctive and very agreeable flavor is obtained. This flavor combines very well with that of current jelly, and a little jelly added to a brown gravy is a great improvement. The flavor of this should not be combined with that of onions or other highly flavored vegetables. A recipe for mock venison which is made with brown sauce follows:

Cut cold mutton into thin slices and heat in a brown sauce made according to the following proportions: Two tablespoonfuls butter, two tablespoonfuls flour, one tablespoonful of bottled meat sauce (which ever is preferred), one tablespoonful red currant jelly, one cupful water or stock.

Brown the flour in the butter, add the water or stock slowly and keep stirring. Then add the jelly and meat sauce and let the mixture boil up well.

Good Advice to All Boys.

Governor Baldwin's advice to the Boy Scouts of New Haven, to the effect that they could do a very great service by helping to protect the historical monuments of the city, might well be extended to the scouts of all other Connecticut cities and to boys who are not scouts. In fact, there is no limit to which the advocacy of protection of public property might not be extended, particularly by thoughtful boys among their less thoughtful and sometimes malicious companions. Markings and cuttings upon bridges, municipal structures and state buildings are all species of vandalism and punishable as such. Boy Scouts are not the culprits. Their oaths and training would keep them from such practices. Their aid, therefore, in keeping others from perpetrating such deeds is to be desired both for present preservation and for the hope of a better future citizenship.—Hartford Times.

Women Worth While.

MRS. MILES POINDEXTER.

(By Selene Armstrong Harmon.)
MRS. MILES POINDEXTER, wife of Senator Poindexter, Spokane, Washington, has voted, and intends to vote again, for a president of the United States. In politics she agrees with her husband. Both belong to the Progressive party.

All Mrs. Poindexter's friends will tell you that her most characteristic qualities are an abiding sense of humor, and that especial brand of moral courage known as "backbone." She watches life at the capital with a twinkle of the eye, and is not one bit afraid to give you her impressions of it. Her viewpoint, and her frankness of stating it, are typical of the unconventionalist and the freshness of vision of the western woman.

"We who live in Washington," she says, "are so accustomed to regarding the capital as the hub of the universe, that we soon become absolutely provincial. Because the capital and the White House are here, we seem to get the idea that everything happens here. In reality all the ears at the capital are a mere country."

Which statement proves that Mrs. Poindexter has an astuteness keener than that of the average politician.

Perhaps the constant reading of the newspapers of the country contributes to his breadth of vision. Senator Poindexter's wife is an inveterate reader, not only of the papers published at the capital and in her native state of Washington, but throughout the entire nation. She probably keeps as close tab on the pulse of public sentiment as does any man in national politics. She likes political debate, and is always an interested listener in the senate gallery when a big issue is under discussion on the floor. All of which sounds like the most advanced type of new woman.

"In reality," Mrs. Poindexter declares, "my strongest tendencies are toward domestic life. I will not say this society does not interest me; I am first of all a home woman, and a housekeeper."

Senator and Mrs. Poindexter have one son, Gale Aylett Poindexter, who is a student at Annapolis. Mrs. Poindexter is interested in all educational methods, and is an ardent champion of public school education.

"Every girl," she says, "certainly ought to have a public school education, before she has a finishing school education. I often wonder why mothers send their daughters at vast expense to a fashionable finishing school, before these girls have had the practical, common sense, democratic foundation for education which only the public schools can give."

Before her marriage, Mrs. Poindexter was Miss Elizabeth Gale Page, of Walla Walla, Washington.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To Remove Perspiration.—If soap and water and exposure to the sun does not remove, cover the spot with lemon juice and put in the sun; or oxalic acid will often succeed where everything else fails.

Strawberry Puffs.—From your baker get some cream puff cases of small size, cut off the top and fill the cases with strawberries surrounded with snowy whipped cream.

Strawberry Cake.—Here is one good recipe: Beat the yolks of three eggs till they are very light, add a small cupful of sugar and very gradually add half a cupful of boiling water. Sift one teaspoonful of baking powder with one cupful of flour and add this by degrees; last of all mix in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in individual tins. When cold cut a piece from the center of each. Fill this with berries.

Rich Strawberry Ice Cream.—In a double boiler over the fire put half a pound of sugar and one pint of cream; when the sugar is dissolved stand it aside till very cold. Stem and mash one quart of strawberries, add a pound of sugar and stand aside for one hour. Then press through a colander. Add one pint of cream to the cooked cream that is now cold; turn it into the freezer and freeze moderately stiff. Then add the strained berries, turn the crank evenly and moderately till the mixture is again frozen rather hard. Remove the dasher, smooth down the cream, repack and stand aside for an hour and a half to ripen.

Strawberry Ice Cream.—Three pints of thin cream, two boxes of strawberries, one and three-quarters cups of sugar, two cups of milk, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of arrowroot. Wash and hull the strawberries, sprinkle with sugar, let stand one hour, mash and rub through a strainer. Scald one and one-half cups of milk, dilute the arrowroot with the remaining milk, add to the hot milk and cook ten minutes in a double boiler, cool, add the cream. Freeze to a mash, add the fruit and finish freezing.

Grape Frost.—Make plain lemonade in the usual way, allowing one lemon to each glass, strain and fill the glasses two-thirds full; drop in a lump of ice, add grape juice to within an inch of the top of the glass, pouring it in very carefully on the ice, so that it will float on top.

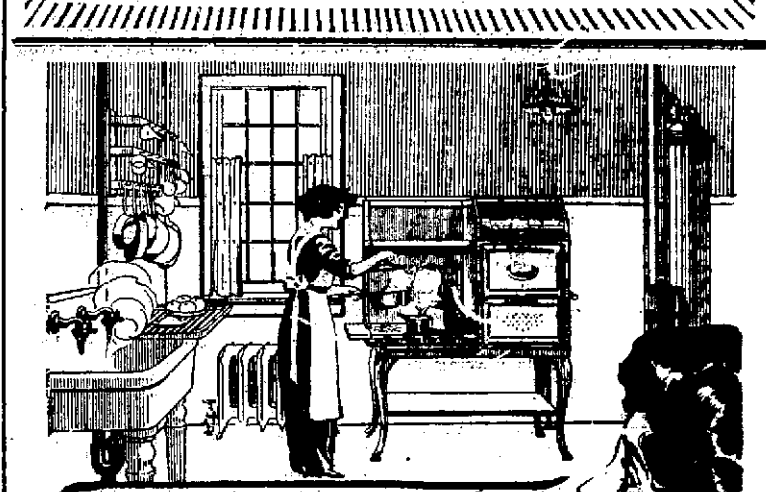

As sure to rise as the Sun

You can't always make everything "just so." Sometimes you will get in more shortening than usual; or make the batter a little thin; or it may not be convenient to put a cake in the oven the moment it is mixed; or your oven may not bake evenly and it is necessary to turn the pan around—none of these little uncertainties make the slightest difference in results if you use

KC BAKING POWDER

This modern, double-raise baking powder has unusual strength and is absolutely certain to raise your biscuits, cakes and pastry light and feathery. It generates an abundance of leavening gas both in the mixing bowl and the oven. The raising is sustained until the dough is baked through.

Housewives who use KC never have "bad luck" with their baking. Try KC at our risk. Your grocer will refund your money if you are not pleased in every way.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Will you please tell me the recipe for making a rose jar; also rose beads?

(2) How to clean face chamomile?

(3) Also how to remove ink from linen centerpiece?

HOUSEWIFE.
(1) Rose Jar—The simplest way to make a rose jar is to put in a layer of rose leaves, then a thick layer of salt, adding ten layers as you get the roses. When jar is nearly full, pour over a quantity of alcohol and put a lid on the jar.

Rose Beads.—A simple way to make them is to put rose leaves through the meat grinder several times until they are fine and smooth.

Put in a little copperas to make them black, or let stand in a covered kettle 24 hours. Then roll them into beads between the palms of the hands, making them twice as large as you want them to be, as they shrink half in drying. Lay them on a clean towel, then roll again and string on broom straws or wires; lay them in the sun to dry and harden. When taken from the straws put into a cloth bag and rub hard to remove any loose particles.

Next put a little vaseline in the palm of the hand and rub the beads; wipe off with a cloth.

(2) Make a suds of a good white soap and warm (not hot) water; add a little laundry ammonia. Wash the chamomile in this, squeezing out frequently, not rubbing it. Rinse in warm soap water with ammonia, then in another soapy water of the same temperature, then squeeze out smooth and hang in a cool place to dry. It should dry soft and pliable.

(3) The drug stores sell an ink radiator which is the best thing I can recommend, if you will use it according to directions on the package. If you cannot get this, get some oxalic acid at the drug store. Wet spot with cold water, then drop acid on the stain and immediately rinse with water with a little ammonia in it. Do this as often as needed. With patience you will take out the stain without injuring the cloth.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you kindly tell me how to take ink stains out of a Brussels rug?

See above answer to "Housewife."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl fifteen years old.

(1) What can I do for my face to have a clear complexion?

(2) We are to have a basket sociable. What would be best to have to eat? It is to be held in the evening.

(3) Eat plenty of fruit and vegetables and no fat meats, rich gravies or sauces, breads, pastries, candies or pickles. Drink good fresh milk if it agrees with you and three pints of pure water every day. Take a sponge bath every day and a hot tub bath once a week. Keep your bowels in good condition; take a dose of Epsom salts when necessary for this. Eat nothing that disagrees with you. Exercise moderately outdoors as much as possible. Don't be afraid to do a little housework. Sleep at least nine hours every night; go to bed early and rise early.

(4) At a basket social I understand, each guest brings something for the lunch. Sometimes it is agreed what each will bring and sometimes each brings a complete little lunch for herself. You might have two or three kind of sandwiches, cake or fruit, fresh fruit, lemons and sugar for lemonade.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: The father of my sweetheart, to whom I am engaged, has died and they live away from here. As I am not an educated girl I ask you for a letter of condolence to him.

You might write something like this:

"Dear John—I am so sorry to hear of your father's death. I know what a great loss it means to you and I send you all my sympathy."

If this doesn't seem suitable, write whatever is in your heart, for you know your sweetheart's affairs better than I do.

CHRISTIANITY NEEDS MORE THAN HOT AIR

DO WHAT CHRIST DID AS WELL AS PREACH WHAT HE SAID IS SPEAKER'S AD-MONITION.

TELLS OF WORK DONE

Dr. Norman B. Barr, Pastor in Chicago's "Little Sicily," Gives Inspiring Address Sunday Evening.

"Christians and Christian churches of today, especially the protestant churches, are face to face with their own development. They have been preaching what Christ taught, but they have been neglecting to do what He did. They are only half doing their work. They must wake up to the responsibility of doing as well as preaching. This was the keynote of the inspiring message brought by Dr. Norman B. Barr, of Olivet Memorial church, Chicago, to Janesville at the union service last evening at the First Presbyterian church. Dr. Barr was full of his subject and his presentation of it was virile, earnest, and compelling.

For nearly twenty years of his life, Dr. Barr told his audience, has been pastor of a church in what is now known as "Little Sicily," in the heart of Chicago's poorest district. The name was formerly known as "Little Italy," and the church where Dr. Barr does his work is located but three blocks from the famous "death corner" where there have been thirty murders within the last six months. Most of the 100,000 persons of the district are either Sicilians or Italians, all new arrivals in America, in this strange land. All of them are poor, wretchedly poor, and many of them destitute. But they have their ideals and their hopes and are ever anxious to learn and to accomplish. "If I were looking for real genuine talent," said the speaker of last evening, "whether along musical, artistic or business lines, I would not go to the suburbs or the lake front where live the families of the people in comfortable circumstances, but I would go to Little Sicily and find it among the boys and girls living in the streets. There are children wonderfully bright, keen and intelligent. I do not hesitate to say that many of them are better than the average of humanity than we can find elsewhere.

Dr. Barr did not hesitate to take to task the churches of all denominations for their shortcomings and narrowness. "We have had too much hot air religion," he asserted. "We have been talking and preaching ever since the days of Luther, but we have been wretchedly, awfully slow in doing things. Now has come an era of awakening and churches in America are well on their way to realizing that their development has been one-sided, that they have not done all that they could have done to help struggling humanity. Some of you are for money, some of you are for fame, some of you are for power, some of you are for the assistance which only a Christian brother can give. As long as you have a bank account which you do not need with which you might be encouraging and helping someone else, you have been delinquent as Christians.

Dr. Barr has praise for the Roman Catholic church for its work along humanitarian lines. The Catholics, he said, have long realized the necessity of service and consequently they have built hospitals, orphanages, asylums and homes for the aged, and among the poor, sick and the ignorant in an effort to give them help.

An interesting feature of Dr. Barr's address were the reproduction pictures which depicted the conditions of the tenements in which he works. Other churches in the district are constantly withdrawing, dying out, abandoned for want of membership and support. These churches are merely teaching and preaching; they make no attempt to administer to the needs of these people, so sadly in want of help. Social settlement houses there are, but they only flourish because philanthropists pour in their money while they are giving material and spiritual aid. They will never have success because they fail to give the Christian teaching for which the souls of these people are yearning.

Fats Make the Hottest Fire

And as the digestion of food generates body heat, so the more greasy, heavy food you eat, the hotter you are.

One can feel several degrees cooler and more comfortable in summer by selecting proper food.

Grape-Nuts

is made of carefully selected wheat and barley and contains all their nutritive values, including the mineral phosphates, (grown in the grain), that are especially necessary for rebuilding the tissue cells of body and brain.

Grape-Nuts is thoroughly baked (18 to 24 hours) which breaks down the starch cells. Therefore it is easily and quickly digested—generally in about one hour.

If you care to feel cool and fit make Grape-Nuts a part of the summer diet—a delicious part!

FOURTH WILL BRING LIST OF ACCIDENTS

Wounds Should Be Given Immediate Attention—No Need for Death From Lock-Jaw.

We are on the eve of the Fourth of July, and while the children amass their noisy tokens of patriotism and wheedle their fathers into the purchase of deadly fire-spitting devices, mothers set their teeth to endure long hours of torture for the safety of their little ones, writes Dr. Hirschberg in Farm and Fireside. Little by little the delights of the safe and sane south are being recognized. Many doctors have learned to deal so effectively with one of the dangers attendant upon the use of fireworks that there is no need for the disease to result in death. Through lack of information, more than a thousand people in the United States die from it each year, carrying down to and from country bred youngsters.

Good Soil for Lock-Jaw.

The reason lock-jaw is so often associated with Fourth of July accidents lies in the fact that wounds made by fireworks are commonly ragged and contused and so afford a favorable soil for the germs. It is known also that wounds where free air and exposure cannot enter, as is the case with those made by rusty nails or the accompanied by deep tearing and those in which dirt has been ground into the flesh, gunshot and powder burns, are most likely to be the cause of lock-jaw. The first symptoms of lock-jaw usually appear from three days to three weeks after the injury. Home remedies and sops of bacon hasten it. The bacteria appear the more serious the attack.

Fortunately, it is always possible to prevent lock-jaw, provided no delay follows the injury. The method is to have a doctor inject into the wound an antidote to the patient's flesh. This kills the poisons as fast as they are given off by the lock-jaw germs, which are a veritable mine of poisons at the site of the wound. If treatment is delayed, the lock-jaw symptoms appear there is little hope of cure. It is then too late.

In the interval which may elapse before a doctor can arrive it is best to wash the wound thoroughly with soap and water, and to flood it before binding it up with common peroxide of hydrogen. After this has been done the wound should be covered with a clean, dry, sterile bandage. A package of antiseptic bandage should always be in readiness in every household. A clean, open wound is a breeding place for the germs of lock-jaw.

A Doctor Should Be Called.

The use of such home remedies as bacon and spider webs, which are so often resorted to, is frequently fatal. The average spider web, particularly if it comes from a cellar or a stable, is alive with germs. But no matter how small the wound may be it is well to have a doctor dress it. He is capable of washing it as it should be washed and of estimating the likelihood of infection. His fee is money well invested. It may buy only insurance against a long and painful illness, but then again it may buy insurance against death.

CHARGE NORTHWAY WITH SECOND OFFENSE CRIME

District Attorney S. C. Dunneville amended the complaint against Archie Northway, formerly a resident of this city in the Beloit municipal court Saturday afternoon, charging Northway with a second offense crime for a similar crime. With the new charge Northway faces a prison term of from one to twenty-five years in state of from one to ten years.

In his examination before Judge John H. Clark, Northway waived his examination and will be brought for trial in the Beloit court July eighth.

FOURTH WILL BRING LIST OF ACCIDENTS

Wounds Should Be Given Immediate Attention—No Need for Death From Lock-Jaw.

We are on the eve of the Fourth of July, and while the children amass their noisy tokens of patriotism and wheedle their fathers into the purchase of deadly fire-spitting devices, mothers set their teeth to endure long hours of torture for the safety of their little ones, writes Dr. Hirschberg in Farm and Fireside. Little by little the delights of the safe and sane south are being recognized. Many doctors have learned to deal so effectively with one of the dangers attendant upon the use of fireworks that there is no need for the disease to result in death. Through lack of information, more than a thousand people in the United States die from it each year, carrying down to and from country bred youngsters.

Good Soil for Lock-Jaw.

The reason lock-jaw is so often associated with Fourth of July accidents lies in the fact that wounds made by fireworks are commonly ragged and contused and so afford a favorable soil for the germs. It is known also that wounds where free air and exposure cannot enter, as is the case with those made by rusty nails or the accompanied by deep tearing and those in which dirt has been ground into the flesh, gunshot and powder burns, are most likely to be the cause of lock-jaw. The first symptoms of lock-jaw usually appear from three days to three weeks after the injury. Home remedies and sops of bacon hasten it. The bacteria appear the more serious the attack.

Fortunately, it is always possible to prevent lock-jaw, provided no delay follows the injury. The method is to have a doctor inject into the wound an antidote to the patient's flesh. This kills the poisons as fast as they are given off by the lock-jaw germs, which are a veritable mine of poisons at the site of the wound. If treatment is delayed, the lock-jaw symptoms appear there is little hope of cure. It is then too late.

In the interval which may elapse before a doctor can arrive it is best to wash the wound thoroughly with soap and water, and to flood it before binding it up with common peroxide of hydrogen. After this has been done the wound should be covered with a clean, dry, sterile bandage. A package of antiseptic bandage should always be in readiness in every household. A clean, open wound is a breeding place for the germs of lock-jaw.

A Doctor Should Be Called.

The use of such home remedies as bacon and spider webs, which are so often resorted to, is frequently fatal. The average spider web, particularly if it comes from a cellar or a stable, is alive with germs. But no matter how small the wound may be it is well to have a doctor dress it. He is capable of washing it as it should be washed and of estimating the likelihood of infection. His fee is money well invested. It may buy only insurance against a long and painful illness, but then again it may buy insurance against death.

CHARGE NORTHWAY WITH SECOND OFFENSE CRIME

District Attorney S. C. Dunneville amended the complaint against Archie Northway, formerly a resident of this city in the Beloit municipal court Saturday afternoon, charging Northway with a second offense crime for a similar crime. With the new charge Northway faces a prison term of from one to twenty-five years in state of from one to ten years.

In his examination before Judge John H. Clark, Northway waived his examination and will be brought for trial in the Beloit court July eighth.

Two thousand dollar bonds required by the court were furnished. The second offense charge is being pressed as Northway was sentenced for a prison term from the Janesville municipal court. His term was recently completed and Northway made his residence in Beloit.

Dorcas laid her face against the soft cheek and whispered something in the child's ear. Robin's face shone with joy. "I am glad you think so. There is just one thing," his voice had a regretful tone in it. "I wish you had been my mother, I like you."

The girl held him out at arm's length for a moment. "I am wishing the same thing. I like you!" He took her hand and they climbed the stairs which led to the upstairs dressing-room. Dorcas felt an unspoken terror. She looked back from the head of the stairs. Merry stood watching them. She beckoned him, and he followed with a few springing steps. They paused for a moment outside the door of Miss Paget's room. When Dorcas tapped, Robin was clinging to her hand with a grip which almost hurt.

Zilla Paget stared at them with still curiosity. She sat in front of the mirror while the colored maid Emilia brushed her hair. It hung to her waist in long, shining waves. Her forehead wrinkled for a moment as if in perplexity. She could not see Robin's face. He was hiding behind Dorcas with his head wrapped in her gown. A sneering smile hovered about her mouth.

"This is a rare pleasure, Miss Wentworth," she said abruptly. "Something uncommon must have happened to make you honor me with a visit. Who is your young friend?"

Dorcas laid her hand upon Robin's shoulder and turned him gently so he could face his mother.

"This is your little boy," she said in a low voice.

Zilla Paget sprang to her feet with a cry of rage. In a second she stood at Dorcas' side. She turned the child's face up to her own and stared at it. The sightless eyes seemed to plead and search for something they did not find. Robin lifted his hands and grooped till he caught his mother's fingers. She flung them aside angrily. "Don't touch me!" she cried harshly. "Take him out of my sight!" Dorcas grew white to the lips. Robin was clutching at her in terror. She put her arm about him, sheltering him as a mother would have done. Miss Paget turned her eyes fiercely upon the girl. "Who hatched this infernal plot?" she cried. "Who brought this little brat to America?"

The actress lost control of herself. She dashed up and down the narrow dressing-room like a caged tiger.

"What is the matter?" asked Dorcas coldly.

"It's hell and the devil—and all his angels. That's what's the matter. What right had you to stick a finger in my affairs? What do you suppose I want of that blind brat? I hate the sight of him. He is the image of his father, and good God! how I did hate him! I suppose you and your saintly Mr. Oswald are bent on ruining my career!"

Dorcas opened the door and pushed the sobbing child gently into the lobby. Merry stood outside, where he had overheard the woman's shrill abuse. He took Robin by the hand and led him downstairs. Dorcas re-entered the dressing-room. Miss Paget was tossing through a heap of letters which lay on her table as if in search of something. She picked up a sheet of paper and stood reading it. A savage smile convulsed her handsome face.

"I know now who did it," she cried. "That was the revenge he meant, the bally old rotter! I'll get even with him!"

"You don't want your little boy, then?" asked Dorcas.

She turned on the girl in blank amazement.

"Want that blooming, batty, imbecile Rob Tully's child? Not on your life! He goes back to the asylum where he came from. I can get the law on them for giving him up without his mother's consent."

"His mother!" cried Dorcas. "You do not act the part of Mrs. Esterbrook!"

There was an ugly tone in Zilla Paget's laugh. "I have heard that before. Mr. Oswald was once so complimentary as to tell me something of the sort. Now, perhaps you will be polite enough to clear out. And before you go, let me give you a bit of advice, my lady: keep your nose out of my business if you have any regard for your own happiness!"

Dorcas turned to the door. The woman laughed as she closed it behind her. She paused for a minute in the empty hall trying to think of what could be said to the child downstairs. If the woman had struck him in the face, it would have been easier to recover from such a blow.

Dick came dashing up the stairs. "First call," he shouted hoarsely.

She ran down to her own room. Mrs. Volk sat in a low chair with Robin in her arms, cuddling him against her breast and crooning to him as if he were a baby. She looked up at Dorcas with pitiful eyes.

"Let me take him, Alice. I have plenty of time to dress after Julie goes out. She needs you to button her frock and fix her hair."

Robin did not speak when Alice laid him in her arms. His slender body was limp and quiet. Dorcas had never known any little boy intimately, and she did not know exactly how to comfort him. It occurred to her that if she were in Robin's place she would not want anybody to speak of what had happened. She bent down and touched his face with her lips. When the door closed and Mrs. Volk went out with Julie, he asked in a whisper, "I don't belong there—to the lady—upstairs, do I?"

"No, dear," there was a thrill of assurance in Dorcas' voice, "no, you could not possibly have belonged to her. Somebody made a mistake—an awful mistake."

"Then—do you know—who I do belong to?"

"Robin," asked Dorcas gently, "do you still wish that I were your mother?"

His arms clasped convulsively about her neck, and the slim body shook with sobs.

"I would like—to belong to somebody."

"Well," said the girl decisively, "I want you—forever—as my own little boy. Shall we shake hands on it?" The small fingers were thrust into her own with a clinging grip.

That night at the close of the second act the audience sat breathless for a few moments. "Cordelia," with her face glowing beneath the rouge, turned in response to "Mrs. Esterbrook's" last plea.

"Stay with you because you are my mother? How dare you take the word 'mother' upon your lips? Do you know what that word stands for? I wonder if it would be possible to make you understand. It means love—self-denying, strong, tender devotion; it means faithful wifehood. Have you ever given that? The woman who is a good wife and mother forgives and forgets and loves. Behind it all stands love, simply love, unselfish love. I believe in God, but today I cannot understand why he should have allowed a woman such as you are to have become a wife and a mother—my mother!"

The curtain fell. Dorcas had reached her dressing-room when she had to turn and fly back to the stage. The applause had grown to a tumult. Zilla Paget stood by her side when the curtain rose. She was smiling a stage smile upon the audience, but the glance she turned upon Dorcas was one of malignant hatred.

CHAPTER XVI.

Wentworth Shows His Hand. Oswald shut up a ledger and carried it to his safe. He and Wentworth had finished a study of their month's finances. The figures were satisfactory beyond their anticipation.

Enoch leaned back in his chair and lit a cigar. "If we can stay in New York till spring—and it begins to look as if we might—you and I are on the high road to become millionaires."

Oswald did not answer. He picked up a paper-knife and tested its piliancy by bending it almost double.

"Wentworth," he asked, "do you happen to think of any one who could take Zilla Paget's part?"

Enoch laid his cigar on a tray and sat bolt upright. "Were you in front last night?" he asked curiously.

"No," Oswald spoke gravely. "Miss Paget and Dorcas had nine curtain calls at the end of the second act. The gallery began to hiss. People downstairs joined in. Can you think of any actress who is free, or engaged for that matter, capable of touching her in the part?"

"It was not acting last night. Were you back of the scenes?"

Enoch brought down his fist with a thud on the table. "I was not, and I'm sorry enough that I wasn't. I would have settled things differently. I have had the whole story rehearsed to me by several people. Do you know that Miss Paget's child is in my home?"

Oswald bent his knife to the point of resistance. It snapped in two pieces. He tossed the fragments in a waste basket. "You mean the little blind boy?"

"Yes," Wentworth's voice was fierce with irritation. "I have not seen him—I have no wish to see him. Dorcas told me this morning what she had saddled herself with. She and I thrashed the question out. He laughed unpleasantly. "It did precious little good."

"Would you have turned the child into the street?"

Enoch shrugged his shoulders impatiently. "I don't want to go over the question again. It puts me in an awkward position with Miss Paget to have the child in my house. So far as I see I cannot turn him out unless my sister goes with him."

"What do you suggest?"

"Good God! there is only one thing to do—send the child to the asylum where he came from. The mother is in the right when she wants him sent back to England. He was in a good enough home there."

"Who took him out of it?"

"I don't understand the situation. Miss Paget knows, I fancy, but she has not given me the man's name. She says it was a piece of nasty revenge."

"She told you this?"

"Yes, I have had a nice morning. It was gone over step by step at home, then again with Miss Paget. She wants the child."

"To care for?"

"No," Wentworth turned his eyes studiously in another direction. "She intends to send him back to England immediately. Why shouldn't she? The woman has to be footloose in her work. A blind youngster would be her down neck and heels. They understand that sort in an asylum."

There isn't a doubt that he would be happier there.

"That is your honest conviction?"

"I'm sure of one thing. That brat is not to be harbored in my house. Suppose the mother made it out a case of kidnapping?"

"I had not thought of it in that light."

"Well, think of it now," Enoch burst out furiously. "I am as fond of Dorcas as any brother could be, but she is the sort of girl who can't be moved when she takes a stand on anything. Miss Paget is a clever, handsome woman. I cannot be wholly at odds with her, seeing her every day of my life as a no."

"That was in my mind when I spoke of letting her go."

Enoch was on the verge of checking him with an impatient exclamation, but the Englishman interrupted. "You have had your say, now I am going to have mine. You remember one day during the early rehearsals I told you all I knew of Zilla Paget's story. I was beginning, then, to have qualms of conscience about bringing her over and setting her among decent people. She is worse than I imagined. In the most degraded woman you find brute feeling—brute motherhood I mean. She lacks that."

"Who gave you the version of this story?"

"Merry told me last night."

"You have not seen Dorcas?"

"I have not met Miss Wentworth since yesterday morning."

"It was a case of stirred-up emotion with the whole bunch of them. They will take things normally in a day or two. You had better have a talk with Miss Paget. She is anxious to see you."

"I think," Oswald spoke coldly, "it would be better for Miss Paget if she did not come to me. I might tell her in plain English my opinion of her. Hadn't we better let her go?"

"If we didn't have to take into consideration the question of a woman fit to play her part, there's her contract. It is iron-bound for the whole season. There's nothing especially heroic about Miss Paget. Get her mad," Enoch laughed grimly, "and she'll give you trouble to burn."

"I'll look out for that myself. I'm responsible for her being here. Clean-minded citizens should not have to herd in with a—moral leper."

"That's scarcely a fit name for a lady."

Grant Oswald's voice was emphatic. "I never did class Miss Page with ladies."

Men Fight On Their Stomachs.

Napoleon so said. A man with a weak stomach is pretty sure to be a poor fighter. It is difficult—almost impossible—for anyone, man or woman, if digestion is poor, to succeed in business or socially—or to enjoy life. In tablet or liquid form helps weak stomachs to strong, healthy action—helps them to digest the food that makes the good, rich, red blood which nourishes the entire body.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

This vegetable remedy, to a great extent, puts the liver into activity—oils the machinery of the human system so that those who spend their working hours at the desk, behind the counter, or in the home are rejuvenated into vigorous health.

Has brought relief to many thousands every year for over forty years. It can relieve you and double restore to you your former health and strength. At least you owe it to yourself to give it a trial. Sold by Medicine Dealers or send for small box of Tablets—Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel & Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N.Y.

Dinner Stories

"Why, Euclid," exclaimed Ptolemy, "what can be the matter? You've pulled out all your hair and seem not to have slept for several nights."

The renowned mathematician raised his fevered glance to his royal patron's face.

"Sire," he faltered in a hollow, trembling voice, "they have sprung the servant-girl problem on me."

Out of pity the king granted him two week's vacation.

There is more than one way to keep an account book. The method of one woman is in the direction of simplifying the distracting matters of debit and credit.

Mrs. Twiller is extravagant in her expenditure for housekeeping, according to her husband's ideas. With a view to rectifying this failing, he recently bought her an attractive little account book, and carefully explained its use to her.

"Now," he said, "here is a $20 bill. Put down what I give you on one side, and your expenditure on the other. When that money is gone you shall have more."

A few days after he asked to see the book, which Mrs. Twiller produced with an air of modest pride. On one page was written, "Received from John $20." On the opposite, "Spent it all."

TO WOMEN WHO OVERDO

Thousands of American women in our homes are daily sacrificing their lives to duty. In order to keep the home neat and attractive, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo. Soon a weakness or displacement is brought on and they suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse. For forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved a boon and a blessing to women in this condition, by restoring their systems to a normal healthy condition. Why don't you try it? Advertisement.

Perpetuate That Memory

A Monument For the Dead

Raising a handsome monument over the graves of our beloved ones who have departed from the joys and sorrows of this earth is the fitting thing to do. Modern custom proclaims it is the best method of preserving for centuries the memory of our dead.

In selecting a monument careful thought should be given the marble, or granite, the workmanship in designing, lettering, mounting, etc. All of which are given expert attention at this shop.

BETTER A FULL DESCRIPTION AND MANY REPLIES THAN A MEAGRE ONE WITH FEW REPLIES.

A family that was moving west from our town decided they would not take any of their furniture. Accordingly they made preparations to sell. They were people who you would say were alive to modern methods. Still they ran an ad like this: "For Sale—Household Furniture. Harvey Ave. 444." Five people answered this condensed ad, each buying one piece of furniture. But if you sold five pieces of furniture, after keeping house for twenty years, would you be "sold out?" She wasn't either! For two long days she peeked out in quest of prospective buyers. Then, being a woman of action she phoned the Office of her home paper and proceeded to tell them in sarcastic terms, just what she thought of the want ad page. The page they "drummed up," so.

The young man in charge was a diplomat—had he not been he would have been on the outside looking in. He asked to be allowed to write her an ad and see if better results would not be forthcoming. She consented!

His ad ran like this: "For Sale—By family going west. Entire furnishings of seven room house. No reasonable offer refused. All furnishings in good condition and strictly clean. Call 324 Green, or 444 Harvey Ave.

They've gone West! Sold everything! Fact! Well—what?

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, June 29, 1874.—The meeting of the celebration committee on Saturday night was largely attended. Capt. Vankirk was in the chair. Dr. Palmer, chairman of the general arrangement committee, reported the work done by that body to date. A dispatch from General Hinks of Milwaukee announcing that a brass cannon could be placed at the service of the committee caused much discussion. Mr. H. A. Smith being of the opinion that it should be declined; but the sense of the meeting endorsed the motion of Ald. McLean for its acceptance.

The Great Eastern circus gave two entertainments to good houses in this city on Saturday afternoon and evening.

A warrant was issued this morning for the arrest of two men being charged with having committed a rape on a married woman last Saturday night. We cannot help fancying that the ice company in this city might be more accommodating to their customers without disadvantage to themselves. The price that they charge would recover all that the public require.

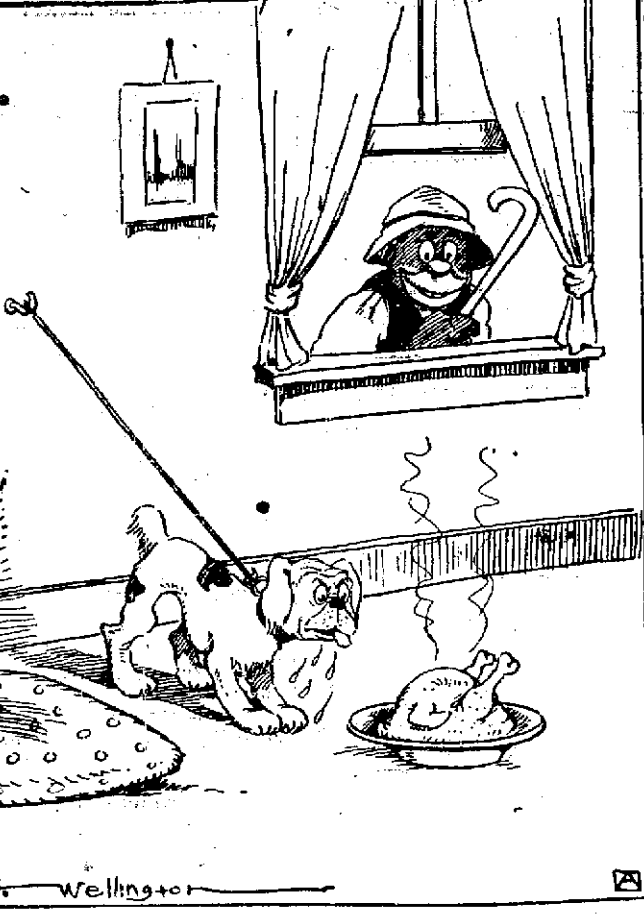

The high school vacation commenced on Friday. School will reassemble the first of September.

The great bore on the fair grounds gradually descends, and artesian prospects are in the ascendant.

If the lady in the Second ward who walks fences and stands on gate posts would condescend to perform at 3 p. m. she would have a larger audience to witness her performance.

A dog riding on horseback through the streets on Saturday attracted much notice. That wise looking animal is one of the circus performers.
